This will exhaust further details that will lead to the optimum utilization of outputs, particularly for the agriculture and fishery sector. To this, all concerned employees are hereby enjoined to participate and write scientific papers for possible publication. Interested staff may refer to the implementing guidelines on scientific paper publication for guidance on the process and submission of this document.

In addition, all technical staff are advised to engage and confer with the researchers of the concerned implementing agencies and to form your own team, choosing a particular research output from BAR completed projects while following the prescribed standard guidelines and policies related to paper publications.

Accordingly, all concerned employees must submit in writing to the Office of the Director their intent to participate in this undertaking, including the composition of their team and the possible scientific paper they would develop for publication.
